Saloniki, Nov. 13—It is reported the Serbs have penetrated within the Serbian border ten miles.

Russ Cross Danube.

Rome, Nov. 13—The Russians have crossed the Danube into Dobrudja at two points south of Tsernayava, and the Russian fleet has renewed its bombardment of Constanza.

Gen. von Mackensen's forces are continuing their retreat, with one-third of their effectives lost, Petrograd states.

Many Vessels Sunk.

Petrograd, Nov. 13—It is officially estimated that the majority of German vessels which participated in Friday's bombardment in the Gulf of Finland were sunk.

Allies Broke Down.

Berlin, Nov. 13—The attempts of the entente allies to advance between Acre and Somme broke down. On the Transylvania front the Teutons captured three towns. They repulsed the Roumanians and took 1000 prisoners. Mackensen's troops repelled troops marching down the west bank of the Danube.

British Renew Attack.

London, Nov. 13—The British this morning renewed their attack on both sides of the river on the Somme front and some prisoners were captured. This indicates the possibility of new offensive in northern France.

The fighting continues around Serre and this afternoon it was stated 2000 prisoners had already been taken. Reuters says in the new offensive the British advanced a maximal depth of a mile and captured several towns.

Petrograd, Nov. 13—The Russian army, which is invading Transylvania to assist the Roumanians in the defense of their western frontier, has gained further successes the war of offence announces, and has penetrated Transylvania a distance of more than fifty-five miles below the Bukowina border. In Dobrudja the advance against Field Marshal von Mackensen's army continues.

Teutons Capture Russ Trenches.

Petrograd, Nov. 13—After an all-day battle in Galicia, southeast of Lemberg, Austro-German troops captured a section of the Russian trenches, the war office reports. The engagement occurred in the vicinity of Lipnicadola and Svitelnik, where continuous heavy fighting has been in progress since the Russians encircled Austro-German positions there last week.

Washington, Nov. 13—When Pres-

HANS DOWIN JELLINESEN

"How many pieces of meat on the floor, Spare Ribs?"

HER arms akimbo, the Widow Perkins stood in the doorway surveying with displeasure her son's latest recruit. "Sure now, Jimmie Perkins, it's marchin' that mongrel straight back to where he come from, you'll be! You know well enough that not another mouth can I feed!" "But, ma, he hasn't got anywhere to go back to!" Jimmie pleaded. "He's been a followin' my wagon all day long." Both mother and son looked down at the limp little creature whose ears and tail drooped dispiritedly, as if he were aware that he was unwelcome.

Mary Ann Perkins, really as tenderhearted as her twelve year old Jimmie, softened. Then the challenging attitude which had grown to be her main weapon of defense during the years of nesting her brood of five, again asserted itself.

One glance at his mother's face told Jimmie all was lost.

"Go along with him, I say! Sure his ribs are spare enough, but if I'd a fed all the trash you've picked up there years, it's in the poorhouse we'd a been long before now!"

Slowly Jimmie turned and walked out of the doorway, followed by the foreborn looking little creature.

"Take him down the street and lose him! And mind ye hurry back to supper," his mother admonished, "for I've got to wash and iron Sarah Jane's check dress to-night."

Outside in the alley-way, Jimmie sat down to think, flinging a protecting arm about his despised charge.

As he patted and stroked the wasted body, his mother's words recurred to him.

"It's Spare Ribs I'll call ye!" he said, turning the dog's face up to his own. For at no time during the Widow Perkins' harangue had there been any intention on Jimmie's part of abandoning this homeless and friendless little waif.

The vicissitudes encountered by the oldest of the Perkins progeny had made him something of a philosopher. Of course he must not worry his overtaxed mother about the keep of Spare Ribs. Nor could he at that moment devise means of caring for him.

Suddenly his eye caught the rickety and deserted hen house with an opening in the alley. With Spare Ribs trotting at his heels, he opened the creaky old door. It was musty and dark inside, but to-morrow he would clean it out.

With cheerful alacrity Jimmie gathered enough grass, from the patchy places outside, to make a bed. Then he picked Spare Ribs up in his arms and tenderly laid him down in it.

With the stealth of a mother leaving her baby's crib, he stole away, tying the door securely. When he had turned the corner, he could still hear the dog whimpering. Spare Ribs was both lonely and hungry.

That night Jimmie's sleep was disturbed by dreams of the hungry little creature, but during his wakeful moments a brilliant idea came to him.

Perhaps Mr. Grogan, whose delivery wagon he drove, would let him take care of his barn as well as of his horse! He could house Spare Ribs there and get enough waste meat from the market to feed him.

Jimmie arranged it early the next morning. Each day thereafter like a clown at a circus, Spare Ribs would frisk about his benefactor. So yearningly would he stand at the front wheel of Jimmie's delivery wagon that finally the boy spoke the one encouraging word needed to bring the dog a bound to his side. Never again was he relegated to an ignominious place running behind the wagon.

At odd moments during his work around the barn, Jimmie taught Spare Ribs some simple tricks. So proud was he of the dog's intelligence that he longed to take him home and show him off to his mother and the children. But as yet he had not summoned courage to disclose his whereabouts to the family. With almost uncanny cleverness, the dog kept to his stable when Jimmie started off in the direction of home.

Then it happened that Jimmie's time spent in the Grogan barn while he taught Spare Ribs tricks, gradually extended until his mother became anxious.

"What makes ye so late, Jimmie? It's at no good boys of your age can be, out on the streets. Remember your father and what he brought us to!" And notwithstanding this seeming disloyalty to her husband's memory, the Widow Perkins brushed away a tear with the corner of her apron.

Mary Ann Perkins soon found that she had a more immediate worry to face than the fear that one of her offspring might inherit the curse that brought her "big man" to his end. Pedella Sue, her youngest, was taken down with scarlet fever. No chance could be taken with Jimmie—now their only wage earner. After a brief talk with Jimmie in the barn, Tom Grogan offered him a bed in his house and a seat at his table. Lonely widower that he was, the genial Irishman welcomed the companionship of the boy, and the diverting Spare Ribs.

The second day after Jimmie's return home—following a rigid fumigation—Ballock's Menagerie of Trained Animals pitched their tents in town.

When the boy got back to Grogan's shop to stock up for his second round of delivery, he beheld a stranger, stout of build and florid of face, no less a personage than the head of Ballock's Menagerie. He had come to order meat for his family of trained animals. But this errand seemed of little importance besides the trouble which had suddenly precipitated itself upon him.

"Spot, my trick dog, the biggest attraction in the second act of my show, is sick—very sick! The 'Canine Wonder' is billed for to-night and all the tickets sold. What am I to do?"

By this time Jimmie had his emotions under sufficient control to permit him to speak.

"Sir"—he stepped forward, tremulous in his audacity—"I gotta dog. His name is 'Spare Ribs'."

While the stranger stood surveying the boy, Tom Grogan broke in.

"Sure an' I believe Spare Ribs could help ye out! Run and fetch him, Jimmie, and show the gentleman."

Without waiting for the stranger's reply, Jimmie darted round to the alley. He had only to whistle softly to his sleek, well-groomed pet. Could the dog be counted on to perform his best trick? He entered the shop with Spare Ribs trotting at his heels.

Jimmie quivered with excitement when, a moment later, the amateur team stood before their audience of one.

"H'm! not a very likely looking mutt!" was the judge's comment as he looked at Spare Ribs.

"Let me show you what he can do!" Jimmie's said.

"Give me his best trick!" Ballock spoke curtly. But the man's attitude only stiffened Jimmie's determination.

Quickly the boy found a piece of meat, cutting it into five pieces. These he laid in a row upon the sawdust floor. Tom Grogan's eyes twinkled with pride as he watched the "try out." One glance told him that the skeptical Ballock's attention had been captured.

Already Spare Ribs was sitting up in his regulation attitude, intently watching his master.

"How many pieces of meat on the floor, Spare Ribs?"

After a glance at the floor, the dog's eyes turned to his beloved master. Slowly he pawed the air five times.

"Now bark it for me! Right! Good boy!" Jimmie stooped to pat his approval.

"How many pieces shall I tell him to take away?" he asked.

"Can you ask him any number?" The proprietor of Ballock's Menagerie betrayed his amazement.

"Any number!" For the first time pride crept into Jimmie's tone.

"Three, then," the showman said.

"Spare Ribs!" The boy's voice thrilled with tenderness and the dog's head came up in mute response.

"Bring me three pieces of that meat!" He held up three fingers.

With not a second's hesitation, the dog brought the correct number, placing them obediently at Jimmie's feet.

After calling out different numbers with the same success, the excited showman shouted:

"Say, you're engaged at seventy-five dollars a week and expenses, whether Spot gets well or not. I never saw such a stunt!" he added, to the beaming butcher. "And he says he has more as good. Who ever heard of a dog who would handle meat that way and never offer to eat it, to say nothing of the woman's face told Jimmie all was lost.

"Well, you couldn't know he was one of them—what do ye call 'em—geniuses?" Grogan exclaimed. "I'm thinkin' about gettin' up a dog show of me own and starrin' the two of them. What do ye think?"

It may have been the time it took Mrs. Perkins to make up her mind, but certain it was that Tom Grogan became a regular visitor at the Perkins home. Meanwhile Jimmie and Spare Ribs went starring on the road and sent lavish sums home.

And soon it was rumored that the permanent removal of Widow Perkins and her brood into the roomy house of Widower Grogan was under discussion.

"Take him, mother dear," Jimmie wrote. "An' Spare Ribs'll dance at your weddin'!"

Which Spare Ribs did.

OPERA HOUSE.

The opera house will have on Thursday, Nov. 15, Wm. H. Kibble's mammoth production of the immortal drama, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" the most correct and impressive scenic production of the late Harriet Beecher Stowe's everlasting legacy to posterity ever seen in America, the only version that has been accepted by the public as a moral instructor. No such amount of money as Wm. H. Kibble has spent on this play has ever before been expended on this neglected and much abused American drama. They have taken great pains in the selection of the cast and have engaged actors for their special fitness for the various parts, rather than their ability to play some instrument in the band, which has been the rule with managers of like attractions. The company which Mr. Kibble will bring to our city is said to number over fifty people, including negroes to add to the pictures and sing and dance in the leves and other scenes. A special train of Pullman cars are required to transport this famous monarch of them all.

THE HUSBAND

That the husband should be trained and not broken is the firm belief of Miss Anna List, the celebrated lady psychologist, who vows she will never marry while in love. Dr. List has collected extensive data in regard to the establishing of dominant personalities in the home. Most of the facts she has obtained at first hand from the undisputed possessors of dominant personalities themselves.

"The husband," says Anna List, "is common with other beasts of burden, should be handled very gently at first. He should be taught one, and only one thing at a time. He should become well accustomed to harness before being urged violently to the accomplishment of the severer menial tasks of the household."

"Many wives ruin an otherwise sensible and obtrusive husband by trying to break his spirit too soon. In the undomesticated state the inexperienced husband is naturally sportive and liberty loving, and his instincts all tend to make him refractory and antagonistic toward female supervision. Attempts at justifiable correction are, in the early stages of matrimony, almost sure to be met with a doglike stubbornness that is much more likely to grow than to diminish."

"A wise mixture of cajolery, coaxing, contempt, independence and persistent firmness seems to secure the best results in training a husband. Young wives should proceed slowly. They should study the temperaments of the men whose natures they have chosen to exploit. Firmness and persistence are sure to be crowned with success."—From Judge.

It is harder for some men to slip upstairs at 2 a.m. than it is for them to slip down after they get half way up.

The only excuse some people have for marrying is that the woman wants a home and the man wants a servant.

But a woman seldom sees the cloven hoof of a man until after she gets a whiff of his cloven breath.

In a previous part of the game Gipp tried a field goal from the forty-eight yard line, but missed when the ball struck the cross bar.

Enjoyable Dance

The Dixon High School dance of Friday evening gave much pleasure to a large number of Dixon and Sterling young people. Five pieces from the Marquette orchestra furnished the music. The school colors of purple and white were used effectively in the treatment of Rosbrook hall, where the dance was given.

Freshmen Dancing Party

The blue and gold colors of the freshman class of the North Dixon high school made an attractive setting for the party given the upper classmen and faculty by the class Thursday evening in Rosbrook hall. Everyone who could come was there and enjoyed every minute, as the freshmen had done everything possible for the happiness of their guests. Card tables were arranged for those who did not care for the dancing. Limello and small cakes were served as refreshments throughout the evening. Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. A. Mystic Workers
The Mystic Workers held their regular meeting Friday evening in Miller's Hall, and a large crowd was present. The regular business was transacted, a large number of applicants were elected to membership and a large class was taken into the order.

District Manager W. E. Rose Sterling was with us, and repeated his offer to assist any member in securing a new member for the order and urged every member to aid in building up the membership of the Dixon Lodge to a still greater number.

After the meeting a delicious luncheon was served by the young ladies of the Lodge, after which dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

Next meeting, which will be held Nov. 24th, will be the annual nomination, when the officers for the coming year will be nominated. This is always one of the most important meetings of the year, and a large crowd should be present. A committee of men will give the Lodge a surprise after this meeting PERCY W. Handkerchief Shower

One of the most attractive of evening functions of recent date was that given Friday Evening at the home of Mrs. Grose by her daughter, Miss Erma, and Miss Minnie Johnson, for two brides-to-be, Miss Jessie Harms and Miss Gertrude Wold.

The affair was a luncheon, and presented many pretty and unique features.

Among these was the mock wedding, carried out in every detail, from the bride, all in white with long veil and shower bouquet of white roses, to the impeccable bride groom in the conventional black tux (her) best man in like attire, and the bridesmaid in maiden's grey with pink roses as her flowers. The living room was in pink and white and was attractively arranged as the real ceremonies were to occur then and there. The doorway, where the mock ceremony took place, was wreathed in smilax and pink roses, a basket of roses rested at one side on a small table, and pink and white festoons stretched from chandelier to the corners of the room.

The dining room, where the function was served to the eighteen guests, appeared as if all the heart of all the world had been gathered there. Strings of red hearts of all sizes were used as festoons, while from the center of the room a Japanese parasol was suspended, strings of the hearts hanging from each rill point. During the luncheon the parasol was lowered revealing a sparkling pot, inclosed in a lantern, bearing its shower of handkerchiefs for Miss Wold. Miss Harms' handkerchiefs were concealed in a bungalow, used as the centerpiece, the walls falling out, disclosing the gifts. Crystal candlesticks bearing red candles, tiny white roses bearing small candles (the favors) and red rose nut dishes further carried out the color scheme of red and white in the decoration of the table which was very beautiful. Varicolored ribbons and smilax crossed the table in a simulated rainbow.

Autumn leaves were also used in the decorations. A two-course luncheon was served.

Games and guessing contests, clever conceits, further occupied the guests during the evening.

LOWDEN AND THE FUTURE.

A newspaper clipping, left at the Evening Telegraph office, says:

The two big figures that have come out of the dust and din and smoke of the political battle, to take prominent place in view of the whole middle west, are Frank O. Lowden and W. L. Harding. Both Iowans. Both ran for governor of their respective states. Both went out, talked to the people, and won the approval of the people to such a degree that they ran far ahead of the presidential candidate. Mr. Harding was fought by a faction of his own party, which had enlisted a number of the papers and other interests and it appears as if the fight had done him more good than harm. Mr. Lowden was opposed by the present incumbent, who is generally conceded to be an astute politician and a good governor of his state.

In the case of both Lowden and Harding it is generally taken for granted that the governorship, while by no means unimportant, is not the end to which these men are tending, the great goal toward which they are moving lies higher up. It is a place in the United States senate, and always there is ultimately for every public man the possibility of the presidency itself. The middle west is bound to get the prize in time and it appears that, when the time comes, she will have some excellent material to offer.

It may be asked why these two Iowans ran so magnificently. And the answer may be found in another question: "Why did Lincoln run so well, especially after the east had sized him up and had taken little stock in him?" Here are two men that sprung from good stock but grew up in poverty and learned how to work and how to persevere, and how to come up smiling. To the end of his days Lincoln never forgot how the common people feel and what they hope and to what they aspire. It is so with these two Iowans. They went out among the people and everywhere they won friends, because they knew the people, not by hearsay, but because they were of these same common people, who form the great majority of both parties.

NOW, THEN—

'The tumult and the shouting dies,

The captains and the kings depart."

Which is by way of saying that now, with balloting over, we can forget our pre-election animosities, spend a few days laughing at and with the losers of freak bets, and then settle down to our Christmas shopping and the real serious business of life.

Said serious business being the pursuit of happiness. Happiness, not ease, or gaiety, or luxury. Happiness—which is founded on health and work and honesty and prosperity, not for ourselves alone, but for everybody.

We believe the number of people is growing who regard themselves not as isolated, self-centered individuals, but as members of a great human family, and who cannot be really happy unless they are helping attain the ideal of happiness wide-spread and universal.

The way to happiness, therefore, lies through service, and forgetfulness of self. To be happy, set out to serve your fellow men.

First, work; for society never benefits from the advice of the shiftless. Second, save; for no good is accomplished by the ill spent dollars of the shiftless.

Third, keep well; for every person in ill health is a liability to the world at large.

Fourth, serve; for only by enlisting in the army of the common herd can you translate your good will into action. And serving means keeping abreast of the times—boosting good causes and swatting evil—backing good public servants and letting the others know they've got to be good.

Nathaniel Hawthorne said it thus:

"Happiness in this world, when it comes, comes incidentally. Make it the object of pursuit, and it leads us a wild goose chase, and is never attained. Follow some other object, and very possibly we may find that we have caught happiness without dreaming of it; but likely enough it is gone the moment we say to ourselves, 'Here it is!'"

AUTOMOBILE LICENSES.

It is a motley crowd of motorists you find on the automobile highways today. Many come hundreds or even thousands of miles. The man who wrecks your car and runs away may come from a state where no safeguards whatever are thrown about the running of a high power machine.

Practice in this matter varies in different states. In some the novice motorist must pass a real examination before he is turned loose for weal or woe. The examiners require him to shift his machine around in narrow spaces and steer on narrow roads until he has shown that he is a real driver.

But in other states practically no restrictions are thrown around motor running. Novices are allowed on public highways in command of a powerful locomotive capable of smashing a strong fence to atoms. There is no safeguard but their own judgment and caution. Their caution may be all right, but their experience is limited. They do not realize how fast they are going or how quickly the materials for a grand smashup arrange themselves. Arriving at some tight spot their presence of mind gives way, and they push the accelerator instead of putting their foot on the brakes. It is fortunate if they, and not the innocent victims, are the ones to go to the hospital.

There are some states pretty loose in the matter of licenses, yet quite strict with any person who has had an accident. They argue that the worst accidents are not caused by novices, but by experienced drivers who have grown reckless.

Still the roads would be safer if green drivers were compelled by all states to take a longer course of tutelage. It does not take long to learn to drive an automobile with a fair degree of skill. A month's practice, several times a week, should make most people competent. It would not hurt them to demonstrate this competence before being turned loose at their powerful throttle.

The idea of a recount does not appeal to us. We think the republican party in the United States got licked and that the party had better accept the licking with good grace.

There are a lot of people eating Crow just now, but we all hope to eat turkey before the month is out.

Cheer up, there will be another election in four years.

THE SOUL OF THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER

Our papers, our little country papers, seem drab and miserably provincial to strangers; yet we who read them read in their lines the sweet, intimate story of life. And all these touches of nature make us wondrous kind. It is the country newspaper, bringing together daily the threads of the town's life, weaving them into something rich and strange, and setting the pattern as it weaves, directing the loom, and giving the cloth its color by mixing the lives of all the people in its color pot—it is this country newspaper that reveals us to ourselves, that keeps our country hearts quick and our country minds open and our country heart strong.

When the girl at the glove counter marries the boy in the wholesale house, the news of their wedding is good for a forty line wedding notice, and the forty lines in the country paper give them self respect. When in due course we know that their baby is a twelve pounder, named Grover or Theodore or Woodrow, we have that neighborly feeling that breeds the real democracy. When we read of death in that home we mourn with them that mourn. When we see them moving upward in the world, into a firm, and out toward the country club neighborhood, we rejoice with them that rejoice. Therefore, men and brethren, when you are riding through this vale of tears upon the California Limited, and by chance pick up the little country newspaper with its meager telegraph service of three or four thousand words—or at best, fifteen or twenty thousand; when you see its array of countryside items; its interminable local stories; its tiresome editorials on the waterworks, or schools, the street railroad, the crops, and the city printing, don't throw down the contemptible little rag with the verdict that there is nothing in it. But know this, and know it well: if you could take the clay from your eyes and read the little paper as it is written, you would find all of God's beautiful sorrowing, struggling, aspiring world in it, and what you saw would make you touch the little paper with reverent hands.—Harper's Magazine.

MODESTY

Modesty is a quality mainly noticeable in folks who would lose by having attention called to themselves.

The modest man we know has two or three other names on his waiting list, and there are oh, so many places he can't go at all.

Greatness is characterized by a tendency to efface one's self. This is true of great modesty also. The man we know who claims the most modesty that has effaced itself so utterly it must be very great modesty. One wouldn't notice that man's modesty at all unless one's attention were called to it, as it is sure to be by the owner thereof.

The girl with ankles too thick or too thin is modest about them. She doesn't care much what color of hose she wears and she keeps her skirts low. Also if her neck and shoulders are scrawny she thinks these one more struggle and I am free gowns are immodest. In fact, she is sure of it. We have it on good authority that the homeliest of the Turkish women are the ones who manage to maintain the custom of going about veiled to the eyes.

Animals are not expected to be modest, and think nothing about those things, so they are comparatively happy. They escape modesty while they live and hell when they die.

Some people are not modest about telling of their ability, but are extremely modest about displaying it after they get the job. Their modesty vanishes again, temporarily, at each pay day.

Synonyms for modesty are: self defense, timidity, bashfulness, hope of attracting attention to oneself by pretending to be so, etc.

We know absolutely nothing of modesty except by hearsay.—From Judge.

BEGIN HOT WATER
DRINKING IF YOU
DON'T FEEL RIGHT

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

If you wake up with a bad taste, bad breath and tongue is coated; if your head is dull or aching; if what you eat sours and forms gas and acid in stomach, or you are bilious, constipated, nervous, sallow and can't get feeling just right, begin inside bathing. Drink before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse sweeten and purify the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside bathing immediately upon arising in the morning to wash out of the system all the previous day's poisonous waste, gases and acids before putting more food into the stomach.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became loaded with body impurities, get from your pharmacist a quarter pound of limestone phosphate which is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Men and women who are usually constipated, bilious, headache or have any stomach disorder should begin this inside bathing before breakfast. They are assured they will become real cranks on the subject shortly.

RANGE OF 1,090 IN
CALIFORNIA'S VOTEDifference in High and Low Man on Democratic Ticket.

Los Angeles, Nov. 13.—Registrar McAller's check of the vote for individual candidates for presidential electors on the Democratic and Republican tickets, completed, shows that the highest of the Democratic list is 690 votes ahead of the lowest. As the unofficial returns for the county were compiled from the first name on each ticket, this will reduce the lead of the candidates "cut" most on the Democratic ticket.

In San Francisco this difference in the vote of Democratic electors has found to be about 400 votes. The ratio carried out throughout the state will make a decided difference, but probably not enough to elect the highest of the Republican list and split the California electoral vote.

PLEASANT FOR MISS RANKIN

Members of House Plan to Extend Congresswoman Unusual Courtesy.

Washington, Nov. 13.—The election of Miss Jeanette Rankin, of Montana, to membership in the house of representatives, will not cause any revulsion in that body, leaders here said. The personal comfort of the new congresswoman will be provided for no matter which party controls the house, everything will be done to show her the courtesy to which her sex entitles her and to help her feel "at home" among the politicians.

No plans have been considered, of course, but one of the Democratic leaders in the present house said that in all probability she would be assigned to a room on the main capitol building. Members of the house other than chairmen of committees, are not thus favored as a rule.

Democrats Claim Governor.

Santa Fe, N. M., Nov. 13.—In a public statement Democratic State headquarters claims the election of E. C. de Baca governor over H. O. Burns by a majority of 1,000 to 1,500 and the election of W. B. Walton to congress by a majority of near 1,000.

North Dakota Safely Democratic.

Bismarck, N. D., Nov. 13.—North Dakota is safely Democratic. With fourteen precincts missing, Wilson leads in North Dakota by 963. The vote is Wilson, 53,806; Hughes, 52,843. Mr. Wilson's plurality probably will be between 1,000 and 1,100.

Wilson Majority Drops.

Albuquerque, N. M., Nov. 13.—With only twenty-five widely scattered precincts in the state yet to report, President Wilson's majority over Charles E. Hughes in New Mexico has been cut down to 1,174 votes.

New Hampshire Wilson's by 63.

Concord, N. H., Nov. 13.—Certified returns for New Hampshire complete give the presidential electors: Hughes, 43,724; Wilson, 43,787. Wilson's plurality, 63.

DRINK HOT TEA
FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Tee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus driving a cold from the system.

Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.

RUB BACKACHE AND LUMBAGO RIGHT OUTRub Pain and Stiffness away with a small bottle of old honest
St. Jacobs Oil

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a 25 cent bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right into the pain or ache, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the ache and pain right out of your back and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica and lame back misery so promptly!

"PIPE DREAMS" TEDDY SAYS

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Nov. 13.—"Pipe dreams," is Theodore Roosevelt's characterization of reports that he is looking toward the Republican presidential nomination in 1920.

JEALOUS ILLINOIS MAN
SHOOTS ST. LOUISANVictim Hit Four Times While Buying Railroad Ticket.

MOUNT CARMEL, Ill., Nov. 13.

George Murray of St. Louis was shot four times by Adolph Masterson at Mount Carmel. "That's what he deserves for breaking up my home," Masterson told Detective Daniel O'Brien, to whom he surrendered soon after the shooting. Masterson charged Murray with undue friendliness with his former wife and with being the cause for her getting a divorce from him recently.

Without warning Masterson walked into the Southern Railway hotel and entered a revolver and fired five shots as Murray was buying a ticket to Princeton, Ind.

The first shot entered Murray's back, another entered his right eye, one entered the top of his head and one grazed the forehead. The fifth missed.

Murray is single and forty-four years old. He has been making Murray with undue friendliness with his former wife and with being the cause for her getting a divorce from him recently.

The later returns indicate that the popular vote on president on the Republican and Democratic candidates will be over one hundred thousand with small votes for Socialist and Prohibition candidates. The footings with fifteen counties out of sixty-two to report are Hughes 48,944; Wilson, 45,696.

RANGE IN ELECTORS LARGE

More Than 200 Difference in Some South Dakota Counties.

Pierre, S. D., Nov. 13.—While there is no probability that the counties yet to make returns on presidential electors will change the final results, the indications are that there will be less than three thousand difference between the highest Wilson elector and the lowest Hughes elector. In some counties there is more than two hundred difference in the range of votes in the different party electors.

The later returns indicate that the popular vote on president on the Republican and Democratic candidates will be over one hundred thousand with small votes for Socialist and Prohibition candidates. The footings with fifteen counties out of sixty-two to report are Hughes 48,944; Wilson, 45,696.

BERNSTORFF IS NAMED IN NOTESDr. Graves Denies Letters Were Blackmailing.*SENSATIONS WILL BE BARED*Spy Declares That No Plot Existed to Extort Money from German Ambassador's Wife—Says Count Is Compromised in Stock Deals Illegal, Entered Into.New York, Nov. 13.—Dr. Karl Armgaard Graves, arrested at Washington on a charge of attempted blackmail, makes counter-charges against his accusers."My rooms were entered through a window," declared Dr. Graves at his home, 65 West Sixty-ninth street. "The place was ransacked and papers taken. Among them were two half sheets of decoded letters. Fortunately, I had not left the originals in my apartments, so my only loss is time. It will take me two days to duplicate the work. A copy of the cipher code also was taken, but that did not matter.*"The letters in my possession have been delivered to the department of justice. When they are made public, I assure you, they will create a sensation. They will reveal illegal stock transactions both here and in Europe. I cannot talk of the diplomatic aspects now. I have given my word to the department of justice."*Denies Blackmail Basis.*Dr. Graves denied emphatically that there is any legal basis for a charge of blackmail. He declared positively that the letters contain nothing reflecting in any way upon the Countess von Bernstorff, wife of the German ambassador. Those addressed to her, he said, were from a woman well known in court circles in Berlin. They were not in code, but, according to Dr. Graves, so worded as to convey secret information of a political nature to the ambassador.*Mr. Graves, at once indignant and cheerful, paced restlessly back and forth, the length of his little parlor, as he talked.At times he laughed. Once in a while he frowned. His manner, however, was one of prevailing good humor."Yes," he said, "those letters will make a terrific sensation when they come out.""Somebody must have been very much interested in what might be in my rooms. Soon after my arrest in Washington, two men representing themselves to be police detectives, appeared here. Mrs. McGarrick, the housekeeper, told them I was away. They flashed badges of some sort and insisted on searching my apartments. Mrs. McGarrick demanded that they show a search warrant, and they went away. Some time later the entrance was made by my window.""I expected something of the sort and asked for federal protection. A young man from the department of justice was waiting at my door as I returned from Washington at 8:00 o'clock in the morning. I showed him what had been done."*While Dr. Graves was speaking, the department of justice agent returned. Dr. Graves gave him one of the letters in the case, to be forwarded to Washington, and a receipt was signed for it.Letters to Countess Not Anonymous."The so-called love letters," Dr. Graves resumed, "are not love letters at all. They are only cleverly constructed and inconspicuous means of conveyance of information. They are in a woman's handwriting. The writer is well known to me."*"The statement of Prince von Heitzenfeld that he had shown me $3,000 is false, and is not borne out by the government witnesses. The Countess von Bernstorff was at no time mentioned by the prince or myself in the transaction. The letters don't contain anything which could compromise a lady or lend themselves to the blackmailing of a woman. They are simply and solely of diplomatic interest, and partly compromising to the Count von Bernstorff alone. For they divulge stock gambling transactions on both sides of the water. This is something the count may be able to explain, but I cannot."*Nothing on Countess.*Washington, Nov. 13.—Count von Bernstorff notified the German government that a sealed package delivered by the Berlin foreign office to a messenger on Oct. 2 and addressed to the German embassy here had been broken open and part of the contents stolen.*It is learned that department of justice agents entered the safe of a local hotel Saturday and secured documents which had been deposited there by Armazard Karl Graves, self-styled international spy, who was arrested here Saturday on the charge of attempting to blackmail the Countess von Bernstorff.*Whether among the papers he possessed were documents of value to the allied governments is not known here. All documents taken by the department of justice authorities here, including those addressed to the Countess von Bernstorff, are said to be of the most innocent character.*Calling Cards*For a renewal of engraved calling cards bring your plate to the B.
